In a conversation with TechRadar, AMD's CTO Dr. Lisa Su said that AMD's upcoming Zen architecture could be a huge boost to game makers. AMD's Zen architecture, when it launches in 2017, will be much more powerful and efficient than the current-gen consoles and competing PC platforms. Speaking with TechRadar, Su said that Zen is set to be faster than Intel's current architecture, Core i7-8700 and Core i5-8600, and said that AMD could see to around 30 percent more computational power than the current consoles
